FOREWORD

We are pleased to publish these 102 Old Babylonian texts as the fourth volume of the Andrews University Cuneiform Texts series. For this work we thank Dr. Marcel Sigrist of the École Biblique Française, the translator and longtime friend of the Horn Archaeological Museum, and James K. Brower, who has the responsibility for the production of the series.

As you use this volume, you may note that Dr. Sigrist has designed this work to be of practical help to those interested in Old Babylonian texts. Of special help is the series of indices found at the beginning of the book. These indices include personal names, deities, geographical names, a register of each text (including a short description, date, king, and transaction), a chronological grouping of each tablet, and Akkadian and Sumerian words. In the main body of the book, Dr. Sigrist also provides a drawing, a transliteration, and a translation of each tablet.

There are 22 tablets in this collection that are sealed, but unfortunately cannot be dated to an exact king's reign. The rest of the tablets, with one exception, date from the later portion of the Old Babylonian Kingdom. The one tablet in exception is dated by Dr. Sigrist to the second year of Hammurabi's reign. Chronologically, the other sixteen tablets of Hammurabi's reign begin with his thirtieth year and continue to near the end of his reign (year 42). Six of the tablets are sealed with the seal of Rim-Sîn, a king of Larsa and the old rival of Hammurabi. Exactly one-half of the tablets in this volume were sealed during the reign of Hammurabi's son Samsuiluna. They cover the span from the beginning to the end of his reign. Two tablets are dated to the reign of Abiesun, the son and successor of Samsuiluna. One tablet each is from the periods of Ammidatana and Ammisaduqa. One final tablet is sealed by Alumbiumu, King of Marad.

Besides the obvious association between the tablets and their date of composition, the other similarity these tablets share is that of being sealed. As can easily be recognized, these tablets and, therefore, this volume, will provide helpful information for those interested in the Old Babylonian Kingdom.

INTRODUCTION

This group of Old Babylonian tablets was selected for their seals. As in AUCT III, Carney Gavin, Constance Menard, and Diana Stein made the drawings. Many thanks for their precious contribution.

Indexes are provided for quick checking of personal names as well as Sumerian and Akkadian words. The tablets are presented with their seals, and include transliterations and translations.

Many thanks to all who gave advice on the reading of these tablets. Special thanks goes to Martin Stol who was always willing to give his advice, and to Prof. Jo Renger, who suggested many corrections.
